SUBJECT: Comprehensive Integrated Master Plan on Increase Military Presence

Francisco B. Crisostomo
Warden

This letter addresses DEPCOR's issues and concerns on the projected 20,000 military presence of Marines and their dependents.

Michael P. Quinata
Chief Parole Officer

It is quite obvious that the influx of Marines would have an adverse affect on our prison population and operations. Considering the young ages and the various cultural differences, we can expect a dramatic increase of arrests and long term confinement. Our current Hagatna Facility will only hold 120 detainees. Presently, that facility is at full capacity and we have an overflow of detainees that are now being housed in the Mangilao Adult Correctional Facility. Our average a 500 inmate/detainee daily population.

Joseph T. Afaisen
Administrator, DTSO

The court system is slow and cumbersome and many detainees have waited up to a full year before their cases are actually heard or resolved. I do not foresee this system improving unless there is a dramatic increase of prosecutors within the Attorney General's Office and judicial system. The military bases do not have a large enough brig or detention facility to adequately house a large number of detainees or prisoners. We currently have a contract with the U.S. Marshals Office to handle all their prisoners.

Luis M. Paulino
Administrative Services Officer

As we have seen throughout different countries around the world such as Japan, Okinawa, Korea and the Philippines, the crime impact has been one of the strongest criticism for military installations. Also into consideration is that the military has a high amount of cases of family violence, sexual misconduct, and child abuse. All these type of cases require pro-arrest or mandatory arrest procedures and thus will correspondingly affect DEPCOR. We must also keep in mind that the criminal acts will also involve civilians; the percentage of which would be difficult to predict.

If given a conservative figure of 5% of these military personnel and dependents will have an encounter with the law, we will have at least an increase of 1000 arrests. This means our prisoner population will more than double. We must adequately prepare for such a potential situation.

The last large influx of prisoners was in the late 1990's where Chinese immigrants infiltrated our coastal borders. There is a possibility that this economic boom and prosperity may bring another flood of immigrants trying to tap into that opportunity. If this is so, we must also adequately prepare for that assumption. The overtime expenditures during the alien immigrants influx overtime rose to about 4 million dollars.

If we do not make any dramatic changes in our facility or increase our personnel, we will see a resurgence of that increased expenditure.

Our current budget is 14.5 million dollars. If our current population is to increase over two-fold, we must consider that such an increase will bring our current operations to a minimum of 30 million dollars.

The only way we can adequately sustain such a dramatic increase in prison population is to request assistance from the federal government to build a state of the art prison facility. Such a facility should have various technological capabilities that would decrease the necessity for more personnel to monitor and supervise this huge amount of prisoners.

Throughout the years DEPCOR has made numerous changes to the original design and the original intent of the present facility. It has come to the point that the only prudent solution and cost effective measure would be to start a new facility to meet all our present and future needs. A general cost estimate for a new facility would be in the vicinity of 90 million dollars to construct for 1500 prisoners.

If there are any questions regarding these issues please contact me at anytime.
